Decline in the value of the American dollar—a decline which in relation to foreign currency placed the coin at about 80 cents—brought tremendous activity into markets today. There was considerable profit-taking as the markets spurred forward but only in the stock market did this have much effect. A review shows:

New York Stock Market—Finished irregular after early trading had brought new 1933 highs for many issues. Aviation stocks were strong in late trading due to activities of one big trader. Sales totaled approximately 5,000,000 shares.

Cotton Soars.
New York Cotton Futures—Advanced 24 to 25 points. ($1.20 to $1.25 a bale.)

New Orleans Cotton Futures—Advanced 22 to 26 points. ($1.10 to $1.30 a bale.)

Spot cotton closed at 8.55 cents a pound in New York. The distant future months, January and March, each closed above 9 cents. January at 9.01 and March at 9.16.

New York Corn Market—Closed higher after profit-taking had reduced early gains of fractions to 4 points.

New York Bond Market—Gained in all classes, with speculative issues showing wide advances.

Chicago Grain Futures—Wheat finished with gains of 7-8 to 1-1-4 cents a bushel; corn advanced 2-3-4 to 3-1-4 cents a bushel; oats gained 1-2 to 7-8 cents a bushel; rye advanced 1-4 to 1-8 cents a bushel; barley gained 7-8 to 1-1-8 cents a bushel.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(UP)—The house tonight passed the Rayburn "blue sky" securities bill designed to protect the American investor from the folly of the last decade of frenzied speculation.

The bill represents President Roosevelt's drive against fake and worthless stock selling. It authorizes the powerful federal trade commission to require publicity of all security issues, both domestic and foreign, sold in interstate commerce and to punish the fraudulent through the courts.

It must not happen again," was the burden of the five-hour discussion which preceded the vote tonight and which raked over the oft-told tale of stocks and bonds which today are so many baubles of fantasy.

Democracy leaders, still holding their tight grip on the house, permitted no amendments. So the bill passed just as written by the committee. It now goes to the senate which soon will consider a slightly different form of the same measure.

A few house members found fault with details of the comprehensive bill, but virtually all supported its principle. So certain was passage that fewer than 100 members were on the floor during the debate.

Hope of Armistice in Economic Warfare Fades as London Government Rejects U. S. Plan.

LONDON, May 5.—(AP)—In a speech reporting to the British public on his Washington trip, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald said tonight that if the world economic conference achieves any final results the war debt question must be settled one way or another as quickly as possible and certainly before the parley ends.

"Our two countries are far apart in space, our interests are not always the same and our publics do not always think alike," Mr. MacDonald said.

"Yet, underlying all differences in circumstances and opinion, there is, if we get down to it, a fine foundation of friendship which it has been the desire of every government I have supported to cultivate."

No outright refusal of co-operation came from Downing street, where Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald held two long sessions with his cabinet, but it was understood that Sir Robert Vansittart, permanent under-secretary of foreign affairs, had informed Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's negotiator, of the inability of the British government to agree to any immediate truce, or even to a truce from the opening of the economic conference, unless Britain's tariff position is protected by safeguards.

A tariff truce with reservations, according to an authoritative American view, would rob the measure of much of its constructive psychological effect.

Mr. Davis tonight packed his bags and, with no conferences arranged with British officials for tomorrow, he will proceed to Geneva to turn his attention to disarmament problems.

Official secrecy prevails regarding what passed between Mr. MacDonald and his ministers around the big cabinet table at Number 10 Downing street today, but it was believed that the prime minister's sympathetic presentation of the American proposal was countered by a strong wall of opposition from the tariff wing of the national government.

MacDonald Says Changes "Unfortunate," and Is Rebuked by Talmadge.

The highway department Friday drew Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau of public roads, into its controversy with Governor Eugene Talmadge over the dismissal of highway engineers, and the chief executive promptly wrote the road department that MacDonald "is meddling with something that is not his business."

The governor had announced that he ordered B. P. McWhorter, chief engineer of the highway department, and four other engineers, including S. B. Slack, bridge engineer, stricken from the pay roll because of their alleged extravagance and inefficiency.

The highway department, through the chairman of its commission, Captain J. W. Barnett, telegraphed MacDonald in Washington for his views on the ability of the engineers, the commission having defied the governor on the dismissal of the men and challenged his authority.

MacDonald's telegraphed reply concerning McWhorter and Slack asserted that "we would consider it most unfortunate if any change were made in the responsibility or authority of these engineers in carrying out the contracts supported by federal funds."

The federal official also said that the government official was taking the "entire confidence in the technical faith and in the integrity" of the two engineers. Captain Barnett transmitted MacDonald's telegram to the governor.

Besides asserting that MacDonald was meddling, the governor, in a letter to the federal official, said that he had "entire confidence in the technical faith and in the integrity" of the two engineers. Captain Barnett transmitted MacDonald's telegram to the governor.

TORNADOES KILL
37 IN ALABAMA,
SOUTH CAROLINA

Higher Death Toll Feared as Storms Leave 200 Injured in Five Towns in Two States.

By the Associated Press.

Spring storms that hopped from the Mississippi valley to the seaboard killed at least 37 persons in Alabama and South Carolina yesterday and sent streams in the Mississippi delta soaring back toward flood stage.

The assault was started by a tornado, born in Arkansas Thursday, that swept across Demopolis, Ala., early yesterday, flattened near-by Helena and whirled away to South Carolina, where it leveled the textile town of Belton, doing damage in Anderson, Laurens, Greenville and Chester counties.

Fifteen were killed in the Belton area and 22 in Alabama—11 at Helena, seven at Brent and four at Demopolis.

Torrential rains followed the storm's path, and threatened serious damage in the Mississippi delta, where rivers already were swollen. The fall of the Tallahatchie river, which has been flooding for several weeks, was checked by the deluge. Highways were awash. Three feet of water stood in sections of Water Valley, Mississippi.

It was the second major southern storm this week and the fourth since the middle of March. The death toll in the series of tornadoes exceeds 180.

The storm started in Arkansas Thursday. It swept into Demopolis, Ala., yesterday before dawn and then farther over Helena. The national Red Cross in Washington said five disaster relief workers had been sent to the town. It was virtually demolished.

The wind passed over Anderson, S. C., with a roar and dipped at Belton, 10 miles away. Twenty houses were demolished and upward of two score persons were hurt.

At least 15 persons were killed and more than 60 injured in upper South Carolina late today, doing damage estimated at $1,000,000.

Deaths were reported for: Anderson, Laurens and Greenville counties, while heavy property damage was done in Chester county.

The heaviest loss was at Belton, near Anderson, where ten were killed, between 45 and 55 injured, 25 persons were missing, and 60 families made homeless. The Blair town mill there was practically demolished, and C. Blair Rice, its president, estimated the company's loss at $150,000.

Four persons were killed in the

U. S. FLYER ACTIVE IN CUBAN REVOL

American Reported Key-stone to Recent Plot in Oriente Province.

HAVANA, May 5.—(AP)—An American aviator who saw service in the World War was to have been the key-stone of last week's abortive revolutionary plot which was designed to gain control of all the western section of Oriente province, it was learned here today.

Santiago police today were reported to have paid $5,000 to the person who would give them the American's name and divulge his whereabouts. According to the conspiracy which failed after 19 persons had been killed—was hatched by members of the wide-spread A. B. C. secret society and certain other more radical factions of the opposition to the Machado administration.

It was originally planned to strike simultaneously at Santiago, the capital of Oriente, San Luis, Palma Soriano, Soño, Tunas, Holguin, Bayamo and other towns, with the action centering in Santiago.

Five hundred armed men were to hide in houses of the Sueno section of Santiago, near the Moncada barracks. At 8:30 a. m. they were to be instructed to go to the local airport, surprise and wipe out the guard stationed there, seize the Pan-American airplane arriving from Guantanamo and make its pilots and passengers prisoners.

At that point the unidentified American was to have flown the plane over the city while seven men bombarded the barracks, police headquarters, the seat of the provincial government, and other public buildings.

Thereupon the 500 armed rebels were to have assaulted the barracks and seized control of the city. Simultaneous assaults were planned at surrounding cities.

It is rumored that another uprising may occur soon, and that an expedition headed by Sergio Carbo and Aurelio Alvarez lingers somewhere off the coast. Three army planes make daily scouting trips along the coasts, military authorities continue to take extreme precautions, and police have heard reports that residence of persons friendly to the government are in danger of attack.

Meanwhile, precautions were being taken to prevent disorder when Sumner Welles, new United States ambassador, arrives Sunday. It was learned he will be taken off his boat in a customs launch before it docks.

Several persons have asked permission to organize demonstrations to welcome Mr. Welles, but have been refused by military headquarters.

Lebanon section of Greenville county and another across the line in Laurens county.

Twenty-five Belton residents were in the hospital at Anderson, while 20 or 30 others received treatment and were discharged. A number of those still in the hospital were expected to die. Ambulance attendants and surgeons refused to estimate the number treated at the scene.

Seventeen houses were demolished in the Blair mill section alone, while 14 were destroyed in the Belton mill village. Other damage was heavy.

Tearing away the heart of the town mill, the twister uprooted a tall water tank and sent it crashing into the three-story building at the weave room in which 200 men had been working. Employees on the third floor, seeing the storm coming, fled, and the building was destroyed.

Schools and Teachers Given Prizes In Study of Negro's Part in History

Award of prizes of $50 each to the high school of Biloxi, Miss., Miss Frances Everett, history teacher there, and Professor George L. Blackwell, teacher of economics in Central High School, St. Joseph Mo., for outstanding work in a south-wide study of the contribution of the negro to American history was announced Friday by the commission on interracial cooperation.

The educational project was sponsored by the commission under the title of "America's Tenth Man."

The award to the Biloxi school was made for the most effective group participation and that to Miss Everett for her work in promoting it.

It marched to the ground floor, where all escaped death but many were injured by falling debris. The storm then swept into the Belton mill village, unroofing practically all houses which it did not destroy. Power lines were twisted across streets and everything blown from locations in the mill was hanging to trees. Huge trees were uprooted throughout the Belton area, and ambulances were forced to halt nearly half a mile from the scene of destruction. Traffic was restored as night fell.

The storm dipped down in two sections of Chester county, demolishing five buildings and unroofing three others at the A. A. Owens farm six miles southeast of Chester in the Belton Bridge section.

The toll by towns in Alabama: Helena, Ala., 11 dead. Great, Ala., 8 dead. Demopolis, Ala., 1 dead. Centerville, Ala., 1 dead.

The tornadoes struck Demopolis shortly before dawn and about 3 a. m. Helena was hit by a tornado. Helena was a terrible and complete disaster. Four miles away—was wiped off the map. The communities of Union and Adamsville also were struck.

Helena was thrown into darkness when the tornado swept down. The town was twisted like a rag. Communication lines were disrupted and homes staggered about in the dark, seeking relatives. Doctors took charge of the emergency work.

Mrs. N. D. Thomas, one of the victims, was blown into a tree. L. C. Mullins was pinned by wreckage and unable to get out. He was injured. The few houses left standing at Helena were transformed into hospitals where the injured were treated until they could be brought here.

Lightning and torrential rains added to the horror at Helena. The lightning furnished the only light for many rescuers who dug frantically into debris, seeking members of their families.

Many of the injured were hurt grievously and were feared the death list would grow.

make a gesture of support for the truce, they feared to face the tariff bill of the house of commons, which already is in favor of paying.

Even the trade agreements recently negotiated by authorized ministers, such as Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, have brought a storm of protests over yielding any of Britain's advantage in wielding the tariff weapon.

GERMANY TO SUPPORT TARIFF TRUCE PLANS

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP)—German co-operation in a tariff truce as proposed by the United States was tonight by Hitler government's special representative, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, who arrived for world economic conversations with President Roosevelt and promptly drew a parallel between the powers of the American chief executive and Hitler.

"Some of you make mistakes about talking about the Hitler dictatorship in Germany," said the tall, erect German banker as he faced a room full of reporters at his hotel.

"Nothing is as democratic as the Hitler government."

He asserted that Hitler first won the popular election and then received his broad powers by a two-thirds vote of the reich.

Asserting President Roosevelt had received his authority in exactly the same way, Schacht exclaimed: "That's the one best form of democracy."

As to the tariff truce proposed by the American government, he believed for the world economic conference, the head of the German Reichsbank said his country was "gladly willing to join in the American idea," which he described as "a very good one."

He said he was awaiting a definite proposal for such an armistice on tariff increases.

On the subject of Germany's heavy private indebtedness to the United States, Schacht asserted he was unqualified in favor of paying. "I absolutely favor no moratorium for the debtor," he said.

"I think this is the only debtor in the world who wants to pay. That's Germany. Funny people," he mused, smiling.

The arrival of Schacht, who holds the first conversation with the president tomorrow, followed a series of varied developments bearing on the American preparation for the economic conference.

CHAMBER FAVORS PRODUCTION CURB

Control of Competition by Industry Itself Is Urged by U. S. Trade Body.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States aligned itself solidly today behind the proposal for government supervised production and competition control in industry itself, but the administration revealed itself as yet uncommitted to any definite industrial program.

It was made clear today that President Roosevelt has not determined whether he will recommend any such legislation at this session and that he is watching both the progress of modifying the Black 30-hour work-week bill in the house labor committee, and the many variations of the plan for industrial self-control.

A resolution giving strong endorsement to the latter principle was approved at the concluding session of the chamber after two members of the cabinet, Secretary Roper, of commerce, and Secretary Wallace, of agriculture, had urged in speeches that the business co-operate in the government's rehabilitation plans.

Only last evening President Roosevelt, making his way to the White House, had outlined his plan for industrial regulation, promising government co-operation to bring around minorities standing in the way of production and output control.

Meanwhile, hearings on the 30-hour work-week bill—a more drastic rival of the voluntary industrial control plan—were brought to a close in the house labor committee with a new plea from Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, for insertion of a minimum wage requirement in the legislation.

She urged a letter asserting that not only the lowest wages are raised by such legislation but that the high levels are maintained. The contrary of this would set up an average of 32 hours a week as the normal period of labor for all kinds of public and private employment with the exception of agricultural and domestic labor.

It would provide also for as much as 48 hours a week during rush periods. Sloan favored minimum wage legislation, asserting that labor's fears that minimum wages were not well founded. He said he favored the highest possible wages as a means of expanding the market for semi-luxuries.

Chamber leaders, however, by the time they gathered in scattered groups to point and talk and speculate, were rushing from her Harwichport home to Woods Hole.

Happy Parents

MRS. NEIL McMATH. NEIL McMATH.

Stephen Vincent Benet, poet-author, visitor here en route to Athens.

En route to Athens, where he will formally present the portrait of his grandfather, whose name he bears, to the University of Georgia, Stephen Vincent Benet, young southern poet-author, spent Friday in Atlanta as the guest of Dr. Phinias Calhoun, at his home on Andrews drive.

Bearing none of the peculiarities of temperament attributed to poets as a rule, Benet, instead, gives the impression of a young student working toward his masters degree and intensely interested in his work. He dresses soberly, speaks readily, and thinks things which please him are "superb."

At 17, as a freshman at Yale, he had published his first book of verse. Now, at 35, he is one of the most admired and well-known American authors. Few southern homes have not known his "John Brown's Body." Few Americans have not delighted in the short story "The Boatswain's Daughter," which flows so easily and yet so vividly. Poetry is his first love.

The ransom money was paid on shore and not at sea.

Word spread like fire through this little community after a group standing on the shore of the harbor spotted the unmistakable figure of "Peggy" on the deck of the coast guard boat.

The usual calm of Cape Cod folk vanished, and they gathered in excited groups to point and talk and speculate.

Women wept openly as they gave vent to the feelings of relief. The strain of the last three days, while searchers looked far and wide for trace of the girl, was suddenly ended.

But the scene quickly shifted. Out from the hull of the coast guard boat the boat bearing Margaret, her father and officials pushed its prow.

Crowd mystified.

Swanson Bars Weddings For Annapolis Graduates

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP)—Love—which has the reputation of finding a way—was dealt a blow today by Secretary Swanson.

He ruled that members of the Naval Academy graduating class may not marry during the two-year probationary period after their studies are finished in June.

"I've received lots of letters from young men in love, and they even had their congressmen and senators come down to see if the marriage ban could be revoked," Swanson said. "I admire a man who falls in love, but I admire still more those who wait before marrying."

Since this is the case, the marriage ban on Annapolis graduates will continue in force.

Today he is working on a book which he hopes to finish in the late fall, but, he said with a smile, the work is coming along badly. To begin with, a recent moving picture production robbed him of his title. Yet when he recalls the loss he sighs faintly, because the title of the book means a great deal. Even so—he laughs it off—that book must be finished by fall.

Born in Augusta, Ga., Benet's present home is in New York. After his years at Yale, he studied abroad, and has since traveled extensively. He cheerfully admits that his favorite hobby is collecting inscriptions from tombstones, a fact which he inherited from his father.

Benet was entertained at an informal dinner Friday night, at which former Atlanta contemporaries of Yale were present. Today he proceeds to Athens for the presentation ceremony.

While one bottled up the entrance, the other came alongside Lee's boat. The child then was seen to be lifted from the Lee craft on the coast guard boat. A number of state detectives and Needham were aboard, while on the shore were other detectives and four agents from the department of justice who have been assisting in the search.

Shortly after the transfer of the girl, the coast guard boat on which she had been placed left the harbor.

FOUR ARE INDICTED IN NEW YORK EXTORTION

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP)—Four men were indicted today by the federal grand jury on charges of violating the so-called Lindbergh act in attempting to extort $7,500 from L. Mannel Hender, wealthy confectioner of Baltimore, Md.

The indictment charges conspiracy and attempted extortion by the use of the mails and by threats.

The recently enacted law provides a maximum penalty of 20 years imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Those indicted are Max Lipsitz and Hyman Goldfinger, who are under arrest in Baltimore, awaiting removal to New York; Luciano Pezo, who is held here in default of $15,000 bail, and Harry Saroski, who will be held here and in Baltimore on a bench warrant for their testimony.

The indictment makes no direct reference to the kidnapping last January of the confectioner's son, Albert Hender, Johns Hopkins student, who was held for three hours before being released.

4 Gangsters Convicted On Coercion Charges

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP)—Four alleged underlings of Joseph Weiner, reputed czar of the poultry racket, were convicted today of conspiring to coerce five partners of the S. S. and B. Live Poultry Company to rent trucks and crates they had no use for and to pay for "protection."

Three co-defendants were acquitted, but were rearrested in court and charged with malicious mischief. The seven are alleged to have wrecked the poultry plant with sawed-off bludgeons April 6.

Three justices in Bronx special sessions court, who heard the case without a jury, returned the verdicts in the one-day trial after denying a defense motion for dismissal on the ground of insufficient evidence. The defense presented no testimony, but gave notice of an appeal.

The principal prosecution witnesses were four of the partners who have been hiding in jail since the investigation started, fearing racketeers' reprisals for their testimony. At their own request their bail as material witnesses was set at more than $100,000.

Jury Still Undecided On Fulton County Quiz

The May term grand jury is still undecided as to continuation of the probe of county affairs as recommended by the last jury, which opened the investigation, it was said Friday by W. T. Perkerson, foreman.

The present grand jury put in a day of routine work Friday, returning 43 members of five, named by the last grand jury to assist the present jury in a continuation of the probe, remained silent.

The May term jury in special session Thursday exonerated Solicitor John A. Boykin of charges brought by William G. McRae, his defeated opponent in his last race for office. This probe was conducted by Robert B. Troutman, as solicitor pro tem, who was excused from further duty by Judge Virlyn B. Moore Friday. Foreman Perkerson, who disqualified himself as head of the jury for the special Boykin probe, when McRae objected to his presence on the jury, again was foreman of the jury Friday.

A resolution passed by the Atlanta Voters' Council Thursday urging that members of the grand jury who have kinship working for the county be disqualified for a probe of county affairs was presented to Judge Moore Friday by J. K. Jordan, an attorney. Judge Moore took the resolution under consideration.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 5.—(AP)—Part of the dismembered body of a baby, swathed in infant clothing and wrapped in newspapers, was found beside the railroad track near the municipal airport today. Police said the body was so mutilated its age, color and identity could not readily be established.

Key Chides Teachers For Failure on Quiz

Girls' high school faculty members Friday were chided by Mayor James L. Key for refusal to answer a questionnaire he sent out along with W. Evans Chambers, city survey expert, in an effort to obtain an expression from Atlanta school teachers as to possible economies in school operation. In a letter to Miss Jessie Muse, principal of the school, the mayor reiterated a previously expressed opinion that teachers are in a position to recommend economies which would hurt the system least. He pointed out that the financial plight of the city is in a large measure due to expenditures for schools.

Two Georgia Boys Held In Dime Counterfeiting

The run-away trip to Columbus of a 13-year-old boy and fear of punishment at home led to discovery of the casting of counterfeit dimes by two boys at Fairburn, it developed Friday when the pair were turned over to juvenile authorities. George H. Brodnax, Atlanta secret service operative-in-charge, said that the elder of the two, Clarence Neely, obtained an almost perfect metal mold at his father's blacksmith shop.

The younger lad, Oliver Milton, 13, who ran away, helped circulate the coins, Brodnax said. Only 10 coins were made, and except for the fact that they turned dark after a time because of the inferior metal, they would pass as genuine almost anywhere, he said.

Formerly at a 3¢ premium... now the price of ordinary gas

SUPER SHELL was originally made to give special performance to big cars. Priced at 3 cents extra per gallon, motorists cheerfully paid $8,513,783.88 above the price of ordinary gasoline for its super qualities.

Today, the "3 cents extra" is gone. And Super Shell is even further improved.

Shell asked 112,327 of you motorists to name the qualities you wanted most in a gasoline. Super Shell has been made to fit your exact requirements.

Extra-fast starting... hair-trigger pick-up... surging power... mileage... and an anti-knock rating that is higher than any gasoline to which ethyl has not been added. Mileage, however, is its outstanding quality! By a special process of refining Super Shell, Shell has eliminated all the waste parts from a gasoline.

Change to Super Shell. It is colored golden. Results will prove its economy for you.

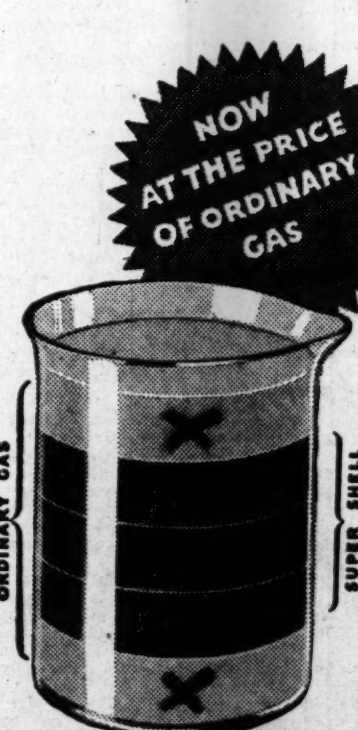

• If you prefer an ethylized fuel, it is obtainable under the name of Super-Shell Ethyl. A double premium gasoline at a single premium price.

"Pack my bag, George, and fill up the Cadillac. And be sure it's Super Shell. A fast, cross-country trip is one place where Super Shell's superior speed, pick-up and power really stand out."

"Super Shell more than lives up to its advertising claims. It certainly has wonderful power and quick pick-up. I am going to save money because my car gets more miles to the gallon on this new gasoline."

THE PRESIDENT'S CONFIDENCE.

The immediate reaction to both security and commodity markets to the optimistic and confident tone of President Roosevelt's address before the annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States further evidences the faith of the people of the country that the "new deal" is destined to quickly, safely and efficiently extricate the nation from the economic morass in which it has struggled for the past four years.

As with President Roosevelt's previous messages to the public, the electric effect upon the public has been the result not so much of what he has said—although each of these messages have succinctly and boldly pointed out the evils to be overcome and the drastic remedies needed—but the convincing confidence and faith of the man in the greatness of the nation and the ability of the administration to lead it back to prosperity.

In his speech Thursday night the president once more taboored generalities, resorting to frankness and directness in telling the representatives of the employers of America that they must, through increased wage scales, make it possible for wage and salary earners to receive their share of the benefits from increased business and rising prices. Equally bold was his warning that unfair competition must be outlawed in the industrial system of the country.

One of the greatest handicaps to the sound development of American business was attacked by the president in his plea for the abandonment of provincialism in the rebuilding of our economic system. In stressing the necessity for unselfishness and earnest co-operation between the leaders of industry, finance and commerce in the United States, and between the nations of the world, President Roosevelt urged the business leaders of America to "translate your welfare into the welfare of the whole; that you view recovery in terms of the nation rather than in terms of a particular industry; that you have the vision to lay aside special and selfish interests, to think of and act for a well-rounded national recovery."

The address as a whole, couched in the president's usual direct and convincing language, carries the same message of confidence that has permeated all of his utterances since the inauguration. It is not surprising that its delivery should have had an immediately beneficial result on conditions generally.

UNEMPLOYMENT DWINDLES.

The nationwide survey of unemployment conditions by the United Press reveals that during the past several weeks not only have thousands of men gone back to work daily but, and what is more important, that the resumption of business activity includes every industry in the country.

In Atlanta, the relief committee has already announced an 8 per cent decrease in the number of those without jobs and a steady continuance of this decrease is expected.

The improved conditions are especially noticeable in the so-called "key" industries—textiles, automobiles, steel and others—with retail trade reports showing spirited advances in many lines.

The marked changes in the unemployment situation and in industrial and trade conditions is a natural reaction to reawakened buying by the public, which, convinced that prices are destined for a steady climb, are now purchasing materials and commodities long needed but which have gone unpurchased because of lack of confidence.

With the confidence inspired by the new national leadership has come an immediate increase in buying; with the demand for more commodities came the necessity of stepped-up manufacturing, and this, in turn, required the putting back to work of thousands of men, many unemployed for years.

Back of the long continuance of the depression has been the belief of the public that a real remedy had been found for the economic ills with which the country was beset. This public doubt has now changed into confidence that genuine relief is being worked out—and the result is that the American dollar is at last coming out of its hiding places to put renewed life into business.

AN EXPECTED EXONERATION.

The refusal of the grand jury to indict Solicitor-General Boykin on charges of malfeasance in office occasions no surprise. That the jury would decide, after a full investigation of the charges, that they were groundless, was a foregone conclusion.

During his long service as solicitor-general Mr. Boykin has won for himself an enviable reputation for ability and fearlessness in the discharge of the vital responsibilities imposed upon him.

No prosecuting officer who ever served in the Fulton superior court has had so honorable and successful a record in defeating the efforts of law-breakers to escape just punishment. During his tenure in office he has been called on to prosecute many cases of wide importance and his signally successful efforts in those prosecutions have won for him a national reputation.

One of the chief reasons that Atlanta has had less crime than other cities of equal size has been the certainty of punishment in the courts of Atlanta under the able prosecution of Solicitor-General Boykin and his personally selected staff of assistants. Organized bands of confidence men and criminals stay away from Atlanta because they know they have but little chance to victimize the people of the city without, sooner or later, having justice meted out to them—a condition to be largely accredited to the indefatigable efforts of Solicitor Boykin.

Such an officeholder is invaluable to the people of a community and it was only to be expected that the grand jury would refuse to be misled by mistaken charges against a man who is recognized as one of the outstanding prosecuting attorneys not only of the south but of the nation.

DERBY DAY.

The sporting interest of a nation today is centered upon historic Churchill Downs at Louisville, Ky., where the fifty-ninth running of the Kentucky Derby will be held.

This classic of southern horse racing causes Louisville to become the Mecca for thousands of visitors from every section. They comprise persons from every walk of life—princes, paupers, beggars and thieves.

All the color and pageantry of the pleasure-seeking mob is there. And when time comes for the horses to go to the post, money ceases to be an object. Fortunes are wagered against the odds in the twinkling of an eye.

Each passing year, since Aristides won the first Derby in 1875, has found the event growing richer in tradition, romance and wealth. Three thousand persons saw Aristides win. Now an average Derby crowd is 50,000.

The actual time required to run the Derby is little more than two minutes. Yet those brief moments of bated breath and throbbing pulses give America one of her big opportunities to cut loose and enjoy herself.

If only you could save a dollar once for all instead of having to do it over every day.

Heaven can tell when times are hard. People begin to notice it again.

But why should Providence give us prosperity when prosperity makes us lose faith in Providence?

Peace is a period when nations try their best to damage one another without a declaration of war.

So far as we're concerned, he's just George Bernard Shaw.

Nervous Twitter.

Six Englishmen are arrested in Russia, charged with commercial espionage. The British government protests and threatens to break off relations over the incident. It would not take such drastic steps if the Englishmen had been arrested in America. Germany raids the offices of the Russian oil companies on her territory on the pretext that the oil men are engaged in political propaganda. No trace of such propaganda is found.

Professor Eydou, chief of the Polytechnical School in Paris, is arrested in Italy, found guilty of having drawn maps of strategic points in the Italian defense system and is sentenced to five years as a spy. Reverse, two Italians are condemned as spies at Nice, having been caught with the goods to speak. A British officer, Stewart-Baillie, is court-martialed for selling the secret of the Czech-Slovakian armament firm of Skoda in arrested and sentenced as a spy in Hungary.

These are but a few of the outstanding cases of spies and counter-spies, guilty or not guilty, that have come to the public notice recently. They are not isolated cases. They are indications of a nervous state of mind in Europe which is constantly being aggravated by the failure of the disarmament conference to reach a decision. Which of the 37 plans for disarmament submitted hitherto shall be adopted?

His Lordship's "Night Bag."

A manuscript has recently been put on view at the Bodleian library, which gives a little intimate glimpse of the great another age. It consists of a single sheet of cross-ruled paper, written by King Charles II and Lord Clarendon. It was passed to and from between them during a full morning's business at the privy council. The chancellor opens the cross-ruled correspondence thus: "I would willingly make a visit to my sister at Tunbridge for a night or two at farthest. When do you think I can best spare that time?"

Then follows the answer in the king's handwriting: "I know no reason why you should not go just for a time (two nights) at the end of Wednesday or Thursday, and return in time for the adjournment, which yet ought to be the week following. I suppose you would go with a light train."

Clarendon: "I would take nothing but my night bag."

Charles: "God, you would not go without a servant or eight men?"

Clarendon: "I count that parts of my night bag." A night bag means nowadays a small satchel containing only the highest necessities in baggage.

WHY DO GOOD SWIMMERS DROWN?

I have read your articles for 16 years. I cannot recall the total good I have gleaned from your teachings. I would pay 10 times the cost of the paper just to get your...

Your article published a few weeks ago on the cause of drowning said that cramps are not sufficient to account for drowning of good swimmers. Seven or eight years ago you expressed the theory that the cause of drowning in the water is the "spasm of the water against the ear drum, washing away the wax, causing the nerves to become paralyzed, and the swimmer to sink in the thick, resulting in cramps, leg-jacking, and sinking of the body."

I liked that teaching. It seemed entirely plausible. Now it seems you no longer consider that such sudden vertigo from the entrance into the ear of the cold water may account for the sudden helplessness that leads to drowning in certain cases.

For this reason it is a good practice to insert in each ear canal a loose packing of wool or of oily or greasy cotton batting or cotton (not absorbent) before you go in swimming. To be sure, if there is a considerable amount of the normal cerumen or ear wax in the ear canal near the drum this device is a fairly effective protection against the entrance of water. But you never know how little water there may be in your ears. So it depends on the amount of cerumen in the ear.

Besides the two factors mentioned, it seems likely that exhaustion from prolonged violent swimming, fatigue or strong current may be a factor in some cases of inexplicable drowning of good swimmers.

Letters From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter

BY ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise:

I gather from your remarks last night that you intend to smoke sometime just to see what it's like. Well, you won't be the first to play with fire.

Some years ago an archaeologist found in Egypt a fragment of papyrus inscribed by an alarmed and resentful parent. I don't remember the exact translation, but it was something to the effect that the younger generation was going to the dogs. It didn't respect its elders, it took no interest in the good old religion; it persisted in violating all of the safe and wise rules.

Human nature, you will observe, hasn't changed much in four thousand years. The young still delight in thumbing their noses at the old. It is their way of crossing the Rubicon.

You see, having been so long under parental authority, and not at last being aware of approaching maturity and equality, they feel an urge to assert themselves and rebel. They wish to taste the sweets of freedom.

Merely disobeying or disregarding their elders isn't enough. They must also kick the idols of their elders. They must prove their independence by scorning and ridiculing every standard and institution that is dear to the hearts of old fogies.

Eating forbidden fruit isn't wholly a matter of satisfying curiosity. It is a gesture of defiance.

Well, if you feel as youngsters always have, there's nothing I can do about it.

But I would like to give you a word of warning. There are two kinds of youngsters. One kind, being curious and defiant, says: "I'll do anything once." But the other kind, having self-respect and standards of decency, says: "I'll do anything once—if I don't think it wrong." There is considerable difference.

The policy of doing anything once has an adventurous sound, but it isn't very intelligent. Touching fire but once can't ruin you forever, but it leaves a scar.

That is the point to remember. You can't go back and undo a scar. One of the old songs contains a line something like this: "The bird with a broken pinion never can soar so high again."

That is the saddest truth known to mortals. A thing that is done is done, and all of our tears and regrets fail to undo it. Immortal dirt sinks so deep that you never can be clean again.

Clean doesn't make you a better sinner, but you never again can be as spotless as you were before you sinned.

Purity is factory equipment, my dear. But you'd better keep what you have. You never can replace it.

HOUSE APPROVES BILL TO PROTECT SECURITY BUYERS

The bill employs publicity as its chief weapon. Hereafter all securities sold in interstate commerce must be registered with the federal trade commission.

Statement Required. Accompanying the registration must be a complete statement of all facts in connection with this issue. This information then becomes public property. No stock can be sold until 30 days after registration with the bond commission.

Reno said a vigorous denial of statements made by Attorney-General E. A. Tamm, who had charged that the bill would be a "stop order" to prevent sale of the stock.

The "stop" order is subject to review by the courts. The customer must be supplied with a replica of the detailed information laid before the commission. Sponsors of the bill claimed that this information would be made public property.

In cases of fraud or misrepresentation, the bill would require the distribution of "watered values and hidden interests that usually have not been revealed to the buyer."

So that registration with the commission must not be used as an advertisement of the worth of the security, the bill forbids any statement in the bill of sale of securities. The measure covers only securities issued after the law goes into effect. But the commission may enjoin any fraudulent device in sale of securities, either old or new, in the courts.

Chicago Thugs Face New U. S. Tax Drive

He charged that "racketeering methods" were used in forcing farmers to join the holiday movement, each paying 75 cents for membership in that "no more than 25 per cent" of the holiday association members in the disorder area joined of their own free will, and that others were warned that if they did not join, their barns would be burned.

"Businessmen were afraid to talk for fear they would get a rock through the window," O'Connor declared. "Now they are talking freely. It is only since the national guard troops have been sent into the area that the quietude of the activities has come to light."

Milo Reno, president of the National Holiday Association, retorted a vigorous denial of O'Connor's allegations, and then resumed preparations for a nationwide farm strike which his organization has called for May 15.

Operations of the holiday association leaders were termed "just another racket" by the attorney-general, adding that many members were not farmers.

O'Connor said the evidence uncovered by the military court at Le Mars revealed that the holiday association had set up its own "courts" to settle farm mortgage and rental disputes. Fees were collected from both parties involved.

With the tendency upward from the state, best prices were posted in the final trading as the market, in spite of recurrent cashing of profits, maintained the advance throughout the day on heavy trade and speculation.

At the end, July contracts sold at 8.32 and October at 8.76, or about 75 cents a bale above the previous 1933 high established two days ago. March contracts advanced to a basis of 9.07 cents a pound. Cotton at this level was quoted at more than $12 a bale above the year's low.

Spot cotton gained $1.10 a bale on the day, with middling quoted at 8.76 cents.

DOES DECLINE Germany Proposes Holiday On Nava Building Till 1936

GENEVA, May 5.—(UP)—A naval building treaty until 1936 on all types of war craft was suddenly proposed by Germany today to the general commission of the world arms conference.

The German proposal, submitted as an amendment to the British plan for arms reductions, made the single exception of replacements. All new construction in addition to any vessels already laid down or planned as additions to the tonnage of any power would be 1936 and on.

The German delegation also submitted amendments which would allow Germany to construct submarines and aircraft carriers, and the complete abolition of submarines and naval military aircraft is not achieved by the arms limitation convention.

MELLON ACCUSED OF TAX SHORTAGE

Ex-Secretary of Treasury Is Charged With Fraudulent Income Returns.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(UP)—Former Secretary of Treasury Andrew W. Mellon was charged today by Representative Louis T. McFadden, republican, Pennsylvania, with deducting $6,700,000, in his 1931 income tax return, for alleged losses in stocks which he repurchased a month later.

The circumstances of this transaction, McFadden charged in a speech in the house, "are similar to the admission of Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the board of the National City bank, before the senate banking and currency committee, which admission caused his indictment."

The Pennsylvania congressman, who bought former President Hoover's impeachment last session, based his charges on a letter to Commissioner of Internal Revenue David Burnett from David A. Olson, formerly special investigator for the senate stock market investigating committee. McFadden announced he had called Olson's charges to the attention of Attorney General Homer Cummings by transmitting Olson's letter dated April 14, 1933, and Burnett's reply of April 19 promising that the matter "will be very carefully investigated."

Declaring that Burnett's promise is "almost a month old," the Pennsylvania congressman said: "I insist that this house should take action on my resolution to cause an immediate thorough and exhaustive examination of the United States treasury."

Olson recently filed suit here against Mellon, Burnett and former Secretary Ogden L. Mills charging illegal refunds of taxes to the corporations totalling millions of dollars. On the basis of Olson's suit, Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, Montana, recently introduced a resolution asking the justice department to investigate the charges.

Montanan to Direct Farm Price Program

WASHINGTON, May 5.—(AP)—Professor M. L. Wilson, of Montana State College at Bozeman, will direct the program for curtailing production and increasing prices of wheat in the administration of the farm relief bill.

It was learned today that under instructions of Secretary Wallace, Wilson has undertaken a detailed survey of the position of the crop which has been one of his chief interests for a quarter of a century.

Wilson was an author of the domestic allotment plan for the regulation of crop acreages and during the campaign served as one of President Roosevelt's chief agricultural advisers. He is in Washington and has been assigned an office at the department of agriculture.

CARTLEDGE COMMENDS TALMADGE BEER STAND

Representative J. L. Cartledge, of Richmond county, author of the beer bill tabled at the recent regular session of the general assembly, called on Governor Talmadge Friday to tell him that he supported his stand not to call a special session of the legislature to take up beer.

"The assembly should have passed a beer bill when it had the chance," Cartledge said. "I quite agree that the lack of legal beer is not an emergency and a session cannot be called unless an emergency arises. It will be time enough when the next session convenes to take up beer."

Representative J. D. Hahn, of Jefferson county, who accompanied Cartledge to the capitol, voiced similar views.

Luke Arnold, chairman of the Georgia Association for Legalized Beer, announced Friday that he was forwarding a petition for a beer session to the governor. The petition came from Brantley county and contained the names of prominent citizens and officials of the county.

TECH PROTEST GOES TO REGENTS' BOARD

Brittain, president of the school, who presented a petition signed by a large number of Tech students. The committee took the protests under advisement.

The committee which heard the protests was composed of W. E. Dunwoody, of Macon, chairman; Marion Smith, of Atlanta, and George Woodruff, of Columbus.

Pension Slashes 'Dirty Deal,' Disabled Veterans Are Told

Kirby Bitter Against Reduction in Benefits. Says Measure Was 'Railroaded Through.'

MACON, Ga., May 5.—(AP)—Declaring that disabled American veterans received a "dirty deal" when legislation making drastic cuts in ex-soldiers' benefits was enacted, Captain Kirby, national legislative chairman of the organization, told members of the Georgia department in convention here today that members of the D. A. V. must work toward one goal: "Restoration of benefits to service-connected disabled veterans by congress next January."

There was a parade this afternoon, a dance tonight and officers are to be elected tomorrow.

Captain Kirby, who made the principal address of the two-day convention of the state department here, declared that the legislation enacted last March was railroaded through congress and said that no representative of a veterans' organization was invited to plead for the rights of the ex-soldier.

"I dare anybody to tell me the name of any man representing a service organization who was called to the White House to defend this thing," Kirby said, "and I dare anybody to tell me the name of any man representing a service organization who was called to the White House to defend this thing."

During the morning William B. Tate, former commander of the national organization, declared that the public had been misinformed as to the results of the economy legislation with reference to veterans' compensation, and said that although general public opinion was to the effect that the changes would not affect veterans who suffered disabilities as a result of service, many service-connected disabled veterans will be eliminated from the compensation roll or will have their checks drastically reduced.

While playing the public opinion card, Kirby said that he was seeking the co-operation of veterans' representatives, Captain Kirby said that President Roosevelt apparently was the victim of bad advice. He also declared that "I have an abiding faith in the honesty and decency of the American people" and that "there is going to be a reaction to this thing as sure as the sun rises tomorrow."

South Carolina Senate Provides Repeal Vote

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 5.—(AP)—The general assembly today provided for a state referendum on prohibition repeal November 7.

Overriding scattered dry opposition, the senate passed without a record vote the house bill calling for the referendum. It now goes to Governor Blackwood.

A proposed amendment to tabulate the returns under a county unit plan instead of at large was defeated, also without a record vote.

Under the bill as enacted, legislative elections in the 46 counties will nominate dry and wet candidates to a state convention for each county.

The election would be held November 7, all voters being allowed to choose between the 46 wet and 46 dry. The winning group will meet in convention here December 4 to declare the result.

FIVE FIREMEN INJURED IN NEW YORK BLAZE

NEW YORK, May 5.—(AP)—A six-story building crashed in flames early today, injuring five firemen who were attempting to stem a fire that swept the structure.

Captain Edmund Schrock and four of his men were on the roof of the structure when the walls collapsed, dropping them into the blazing debris.

Royal Family 'Unaware' Of Birth To Prince

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 5.—(AP)—While the royal family can take no official notice of the birth of a baby girl yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Lennart Bernadotte because the father, former Prince Lennart, chose a commoner for a wife a year ago, the king and other members of the royal family are expected to pay private visits to the hospital.

The pretty blonde mother, who was Miss Karin Nilsson, and the child were reported today to be doing nicely.

The birth received only slight notice in the Swedish press, which often has ridiculed the former prince for his theatrical and business ventures which have been characterized as unsuccessful.

Parent Is Responsible For Car Damage, Ruling

"Under the family purpose doctrine, a parent is responsible for the negligent operation of an automobile operated for the comfort and pleasure of the family by an adult son or daughter living with the parent as a member of the family, where the automobile is furnished to the family and such members for the convenience, use and pleasure of the family," the judge ruled.

The decision was handed down in the case of B. L. Kennedy against Tom Manis and his daughter, Lucile Manis, in which Kennedy sought $10,000 for injuries alleged to have been received in an accident involving his car and a machine driven by Lucile Manis, in Dalton on January 9, 1932. The appellate court reversed action of Whitfield superior court in sustaining a demurrer to the suit.

Babe's Chuckle Foils Brunswick Burglars

BRUNSWICK, Ga., May 5.—(AP)—A friendly baby's cooling frustrated the robbery of a Brunswick home last night.

Its parents and their guests were playing bridge in another room and suddenly the mother heard the child chuckle just as it always does when any one approaches.

She investigated and found it snuggly in bed but the chuckling was heard again when the game was resumed.

About that time a neighbor came running to tell that he had seen two men peeping through the nursery window. Twice they started to crawl through, he said, but seemed to change their minds and finally fled.

YOUTHS RESENTENCED TO DEATH FOR ATTACK

MACON, Ga., May 5.—(AP)—Fixing of a new date for the execution of Charles R. Haden and Ross Hatcher Jr. today, removed the case from the local court and sent it to the state prison commission and the governor.

Judge Malcolm D. Jones, of superior court in Macon, had sentenced the two youths to death for the murder of a young woman here in August, 1931, decreed that they should die in the electric chair on May 25.

This gives counsel for the condemned men 20 days, provided by law, for them to apply for a hearing before the prison commission and the governor.

Judge Jones declined a request of the defense counsel to delay resentencing the young men, pending the action of the prison commission. He called attention to a delay since February, when he said, was to give the governor time to study the case.

The original death date was December 4, 1931. Execution of the sentence was superseded, however, when the cases were appealed to the supreme court of Georgia.

Germany and Russia Renew Berlin Treaty

MOSCOW, May 5.—(AP)—The foreign office announced today that an exchange of ratifications had taken place yesterday between Maxim Litvinov, commissar for foreign affairs, and Ambassador Herbert von Dirksen, of Germany, in prolongation of the Berlin treaty of 1926 and the soviet-german conciliation agreement of 1929.

The extension is for an indefinite period, but can be denounced by either party on one year's notice. Germany and soviet Russia on January 25, 1929, signed a treaty in which they pledged themselves to submit all disputes to a joint commission of two Germans and two Russians. The German description of the treaty classified the commission as one of "mediation," rather than a "conciliation" arbitration.

The agreement was considered an adjunct of the "Berlin treaty of non-aggression and neutrality" which was signed in April, 1926.

F. D. R. ASKED TO MOVE NEXT SCOTTSBORO CASE

The delegation was received by Colonel Louis M. Howe, secretary to the president.

S. C. House Approves Appropriation Bill

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 5.—(P)—Surviving a stiff all-day fight, the free conference report on the general appropriation bill was adopted by the house late today. The vote was 51

Adjournment next week was anticipated by most legislators, unless a deadlock results from proposals for new indirect taxes to support public schools. A major piece of legislation was completed today when the senate approved a house resolution providing a referendum next November 7 on the question of repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

By returning next week, the general assembly will shatter the modern record for length of session. It will surpass the mark of 117 calendar days set in 1931.

That night the old lady is found proving his death. Perilla says, "I'll be there after." Man threatens her with the madhouse, but man, who is a detective, says he will investigate her suspicions. When the will is it is found that Corey left the greater part of his estate to Perilla. She reaches New York after the funeral state of collapse. Malcolm, arriving in New York, is surprised to find the social secretary, that people in Richmond are influenced by the Lovells. "Those are promises," said the girl, "and I have no pride in my achievement. What did you not last night at the bridge party?"

"That there was very little to be noticed," he said, "but I should like to be upon as your suspects, even if we want a suspect."

Stone lifted his eyebrows.

"Already?" he said, whimsically.

"Were there any suspects there?"

"Only you and Mr. Garth."

"And why we two?"

"Elimination. You can't suspect Jane or Hilda, or the children. Peter and I. We can't imagine Lady P. or Tony in the wrong; I am innocent, but I can't think you was that party gathered for no reason at all, and I can't think you would go to suspect Mr. Garth. You and he are the only ones present last night whom I didn't know."

"Fleming says he has been laughing at you," he said.

"Whom did you know?"

"Fleming said, 'Bob, if it will get anywhere. You say you're innocent."

TARZAN THE APE MAN No. 36

The raft was rocking perilously as the hippopotamus churned and thrashed the water about it. Excited and thrilled, Jean watched the effect of her shots. Now she saw another hippo coming toward her. This time her father fired—but missed.

The hippo submerged and came to the surface between the two rafts. Parker called to Holt on the other raft: "Get him—I missed him." Holt turned, and as he raised his rifle, the hippo ducked. He fired into the water and the beast came up right under Holt's raft.

The raft was tipped up on one end and the men were spilled into the water. Frantically they swam about, seeking escape. The raft was broken into pieces and more hippos were approaching when Holt yelled: "Make for the other raft!"

Riano screamed in Swahili for the native boys to obey and save themselves. Everyone made for the Parker raft except two natives, who started swimming for the opposite shore. And on the rock strewn sand the hungry crocodiles awaited them!
